Midseason Lack of Money Prevents Tribune Fresh Air Fund from Acting.

ONE INSTANCE OF THE NEED

Little Boy Asleep at Night on Stairway of Brooklyn Bridge Attracts Attention of Many Possible Givers.

A little boy about seven years old asleep on a stairway of the Brooklyn Bridge attracted the attention of hundreds of persons between 11 and 12 o'clock last night.

He was a foriorn little chap-probably one who sold newspapers or gum earlier in the evening and sat down to rest for a moment and went to sleep.

At any rate, there he lay, wedged up against the rail, his head pillowed on one step and the rest of his body distributed over the two below. Persons who came suddenly around the corner of the Pulitzer Building and started up the steps nearly trampled the youngster under foot; but almost every one bestowed a pitying Flinn were married at 7 o'clock this mornglance and a "Poor little fellow! I wonder who he is?" on him as he hurried

Then, either because the steel after the ceremony for Fourth Lake, in tread of the step became too hard for a the Adirondacks. pillow or because the gong of a passing streetcar clanged louder than usual, he aroused himself, looked blankly around aroused himself, looked blankly aroused himself, looked blankl

There is hardly a person in New York or elsewhere with more money in his pocket than is needed for actual running expenses who would not give enough of it to send this child to the country for a Former Anna Gould Anxious to fertnight, away from his pitiful surroundings, if the child were set before him and the matter put to him personally: "This child will be given a country fortnight, rand, who was Anna Gould, of New with plenty of food, clean surroundings York, in a letter written to the "Glornale and unbounded opportunities for play if d'Vitalia" concerning the decision renyou will give $5 to meet the expenses of dered recently by the Rota Tribunal anthe outing. Otherwise he must stay where nulling her marriage to Count Boni de he is, amid his sordid surroundings, throughout the summer.

Yet this is the simple fact. For almost every person with $5, $10 or $100 that he could give for Fresh Air work there is a little child-hungry and in rags, probably; a dweller in an impossible tenement doubtless-who is longing and pleading for a glimpse and a breath of the country. Some of these little ones are sick, somjust discharged from hospitals; others are living on starvation rations; still others are tired with work at tasks beyond their fect of the Segnatura Tribunal-the suyears and strength, and all are children who know little of the real pleasures of had decided to postpone until November

How many of these boys and girls the Tribune Fresh Air Fund will provide give $5, $10 or $100 must say. The situation is at a crisis. Fresh Air work all over the city is crippled for lack of funds this year, as it has not been for years in the past. The only reason most be that the public is not alive to the needs of the senson

The manager of the Tribune Fund knows where an almost unlimited number of country hosts stand ready to take the their homes as guests at the mere request if the Tribune Fund will send the children to them.

But the manager fears to make the request because funds are not available to meet railroad expenses. There has been received $20,603 47 toward the expenses of the season's work to date. This will not however, meet the bills already due. The expenses of last season's work were over $46,000; they cannot be less this year unless the work is curtailed.

The Fresh Air season is half over. What is done, therefore, must be done quickly, for soon it will be too late to ask friends in the country to take the children in. Shall the canvass for invitations be halted and the children left to suffer alone? This question is for those who can help with funds to answer.

General José Miguel Gomez, former

President of Cuba, is on the steamship Olympic, due here to-day. He is hurry ing back to Havana, after spending in Europe only a little more than a month of a trip that he intended should last until October.

General Gomez's sudden return is causing much speculation among Cubans in this city, who think they see in the curtailment of General Gomez's trip abroad something of political importance.

General Gomez sailed from Havana on June 15 in the steamer Espagne. He was accompanied by his family and servants, Which made a party of fifteen. He announced at the time that he would return to Cuba in October to reorganize the Lib-

WILL OF MORRIS GREEN FILED.

GEN. HANCOCK POOR AT DEATH, COURT LEARNS

Morgan Executors Would Have Trust Company Take Fund Created for Family.

PRESIDENCY FIGHT COSTLY

Candidate Against Garfield Spent Much of Savings in Campaign of 1880-Grandchildren Beneficiaries.

The executors of the will of J. Pierpont Morgan brought proceedings in the Su preme Court yesterday for permission to ile a final accounting of the fund created for the family of General Winfield Scott Hancock, of which Mr. Morgan was the treasurer. The executors wish to turn the fund over to the Guaranty Trust Company and have that corporation act as trustee hereafter.

The proceeding shows that General Hancock was almost penniless when he died, in 1886. His widow was practically dependent on the income from the fund reated by public subscriptions. per death the income has been paid to ner grandchildren.

General Hancock spent much of his savings in his campaign for the Presidency on the Democratic ticket in 1880, when he was defeated by General James A. Garfield. He was commander of the Department of the Atlantic when he died, at Governor's Island, and his chief income was his pay as major general.

After his death a public announcement was made which read: "General Hancock, another great man, has died poor. Another noble woman has been left with meagre support, though she shared the fortunes of her husband and did her full share in making his fame. Liberal and patriotic citizens have suggested to intimate friends of General Hancock and his widow that a fund be raised for the benefit of the family. We, therefore, knowi...; General Hancock's circumstances and the drafts upon his pay by the hospitalities arising from his official position, and the endless charities to which he responded, especially those re sulting from the Civil War, earnestly mmend the suggestion.' Mr. Morgan's name was signed as treasurer for the fund. He received $47,471. Mrs. Almira R. Hancock, the general's widow, received the income from the fund until 1893, when she died. Then three grandchildren became the beneficiaries. Jwynn R. Hancock, one of these, died fund to his two sisters. They are now the only beneficiaries.

The death of Mr. Morgan made it necessary to deliver the fund to a new Nearly the entire amount was invested in West Shore bonds, but on the request of the beneficiaries $45,000 was lent to Mrs. Elizabeth G. Door, who gave as security a mortgage on a planta-tion. When the loan was repaid it was reinvested in securities. The Guaranty Trust Company has been holding these securities. The Morgan executors said he company was willing to become the trustee of the fund.
